Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, 1904
The Gildersleeve Family, pages 339 - 344

"Henry Gildersleeve, the founder of the Canadian branch of the Gildersleeve family, who may properly be called the "Father of Navigation upon the Bay of Quinte," came from Connecticut and settled at Bath, about July 1st, 1816. His life for a time is so closely connected with the Finkle family, that a brief reference to the latter's history, even at the risk of repetition, may not be inappropriate.

"The Finkles are descended from the United Empire Loyalist George Finkle, who came from Germany when a young man, and settled in Dutchess County, New York. Here he acquired very considerable landed property, which remained in his possession until about the close of the American Revolution, His loyalty during this trying period led to the confiscation of his estates, and impelled him to seek shelter in another land, under the protection of the British Crown.

"Of his two sons, one immediately migrated to the further West and is said to have been the founder of the Finkle family in Sidney. The second son, Henry Finkle, entered the Engineer's Department at Quebec, and also mastered the trade of carpentry, before taking up the lands to which he was entitled. Subsequently he settled on the Front of Ernesttown, and on May 15th, 1788, married Lucy Bleeker. He died January 15th, 1808. He utilized his knowledge of carpentry in creating the first framed house in Upper Canada. It was, for its day, quite an imposing mansion. Here, Judge Hagerman held Court at various times, and in one of the cases before him, he inflicted capital punishment.

"The name of Henry Finkle occurs repeatedly in all the early records of Ernestown. Not only was he respected for his means and attainments, but his kindly disposition seems to have brought him no little personal popularity. The marriage register of the parish church at Bath, shows that he officiated as a witness at innumerable weddings, among the children of the pioneers.

"He amassed a very considerable estate, and his widow was enabled to provide their children with the best possible education. Their daughter, Minerva, attended Litchfield Academy, Connecticut, as the school mates of the sisters Beecher, one of whom subsequently became famous in history and literature as Harriet Beecher Stowe, whose celebrated story of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was instrumental in driving slavery from the Western World.

"Another daughter, Sarah Finkle, attended the same academy. There is some question whether she was born in 1801 or 1804, but in either event she was scarcely more than a child when her future husband, Henry Gildersleeve, arrived in Canada.

"He came from a long line of successful ship builders, including his father, who at that time owned and operated at large ship yard, upon the banks of the River Connecticut. Henry had thoroughly learned his trade as shipwright, before coming to Ontario; indeed he was then over thirty years of age, and, as his subsequent career would indicate, thoroughly matured; a resourceful, energetic man of marked executive ability.

"Ship building had already commenced at Finkle's Point; indeed, it is stated that the steamer "Frontenac" (constructed at a cost of one hundred thousand dollars), was launched within a month of two after his arrival. It is more likely, however, that this steamer was finished under his direction. Certain it is that he finished two other steamers called, "The Queen Charlotte" and the "Sir James Kempt," respectively, and subsequently constructed a number of additional steamers, that plied for years between the various ports along the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario. Among these we recall the "Commodore Barry," "The Henry Gildersleeve," "The Prince of Wales," "The New Era" and the "Bay of Quinte." Another packet built to ply between Toronto and Niagara, and declared by Captain Murny (sic) to have been the finest boat that he had ever seen in Kingston Harbor, is said by a very eminent historian, to have been called the "Minerva Ann," but this is probably an error. The names of Minerva and Ann were borne respectively by the eldest and youngest daughters of Henry Finkle; and this title the "Minerva Ann" was born not by this packet but by a small schooner built for the Widow Finkle.

"We call attention to this details, because it is important that there should be historical accuracy concerning the beginning of steam navigation upon the Bay of Quinte; and already some confusion is found in the accounts heretofore published. For example, the Finkle family undoubtedly took an active part in the shipbuilding at Finkle's Point, both before and after the arrival of Henry Gildersleeve, but that Henry Finkle himself was not connected with the building of the "Frontenac." In spite of all assertions to the contrary, is evidenced by the fact he died in 1808, while, as we have seen, the launching of the "Frontenac" occurred in August of the year 1816.

"His widow, however, was a woman of uncommon shrewdness and ability. She was one of the first to urge the necessity of better boats, and the feasibility of construction at Finkle's Point, and beyond doubt, she cooperated with her sons and afterwards with her son-in-law, in carrying her views into effect.

"In 1824 Henry Gildersleeve married Sarah Finkle, and his descendants are traced in the table annexed. In time he passed from the building, to the operation and running of steam ships, training his men in every department of the work, and successfully carrying on a business that has grown and prospered to this hour. He died in Kingston, October 1st, 1851, aged sixty-five.

"He was succeeded in business by his son, Overton Gildersleeve, who married Louise, daughter of Chief Justice Draper. He died in 1864, and the business was then taken over by his brother Charles, as hereafter noted.

"Miss Lucretia Gildersleeve, lived in the fine old homestead, on King Street, opposite St. George's Cathedral. She has in her possession a bugle, that was used on her father's vessel, and many family records and heirlooms of priceless value, including some pieces of silver that came to her mother as a wedding gift. She is a lady of cultivation, who has retained as far as possible, the draperies and furniture that so appropriately belong to, and are associated with the house itself; and the stately old mansion is also brightened by many curios collected by her during years of travel.

"Charles Fuller Gildersleeve, the son of Henry Gildersleeve, and Sarah Finkle, was born in Kingston, educated at Upper Canada College, and called to the bar in 1859. Upon the death of his brother in 1864, he assumed the management of the steamship business, built and owned the "Corinthian," "Norseman," "Maud," and "North King;" and has also owned the "Empress," "the "Bay of Quinte," "Hastings," and "Hero," plying between Rochester and Port Hope, and Kingston and Belleville. In 1893, he formed the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Steamboat Company, which took over the vessels owned by him, and of which Company he was at once made general manager. In 1894 he was appointed general manager of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Co., owning some twenty-five steamers in active operation and controlling the passenger traffic between Toronto, Montreal, Quebec, and the Saguenay River. Although before his appointment the stock had paid no dividends for years, it at once became, under his management, a good investment. He was instrumental in having built the Kingston and Pembroke railroad, and became the President of the Company. He took an active part in founding the Kingston School of Mines and the Agricultural College. He was chairman of the committee which secured the enlargement of St. George's Cathedral at Kingston. For more than twenty years he was a member of the city council, and in 1879, was Mayor of Kingston. He is a member of the Liberal party and has been a candidate in the Liberal interest for the Provincial Parliament. He is a member of the Church of England, and also of the A.F. and A.M., being the third eldest resident member of the St. John's Lodge. He married Mary E. Herchemer (or Herkimer as the name was formerly spelled), a descendant of Colonel Herkimer, a distinguished loyalist, mentioned by Sabine, Ryerson, Canniff and other historians, Upon her mother's side she was descended from Sir Frederick McKenzie. Of their children, Henry resides at Collingwood, where he is manager of the Northern Navigation Company; Maud Gertrude, who married Colonel Rivers, of the Royal Canadian Artillery, who is stationed at Ottawa.

"Of the remaining daughters of Henry Gildersleeve, it may be mentioned that Sarah married James Grant McDonald, and that Gertrude married Rev. Frank Kirkpatrick, son of the late Thomas Kirkpatrick, and nephew of the late Sir George Kirkpatrick.

"James Gildersleeve, youngest son and fifth child of Henry Gildersleeve and Sarah Finkle Gildersleeve, was educated at Kingston, Upper Canada College, and Queen's University, receiving the degree of LL.B. from Queen's" in 1863. It is an interesting fact that the law faculty having been but recently organized, its first graduates to receive this degree, was the class of '63. Thus, Mr. Gildersleeve, being the first to receive his diploma, enjoys the singular distinction of being the first Bachelor of Laws to graduate from this famous University. In the same years he was called to the Bar, and continued in active practise for the next ten or twelve years; during a portion of this time he was in partnership with R.T. WALKEM, LL.F., now chancellor of the Diocese of Ontario.

"It was about 1875 that he entered into the insurance and steamship business, becoming agent to the Allan and other leading lines. In 1884, he was gazetted Registrar of the city of Kingston; and since 189, has devoted his entire life to the responsible duties incumbent upon this position. In the last names year, he formed a partnership with his nephew, James Kirkpatrick, who devotes his entire time to the steamship agencies and the insurance business, now carried on under the firm name and style of "Gildersleeve and Kirkpatrick."

"Prior to his appointment to his present office, Mr. Gildersleeve took an active interest in politics, being an earnest member of the Liberal party, and high in the counsels of the late Sir Oliver Mowat.

"He also interested himself in all matters municipal, serving as Alderman of the city of Kingston, from 1878 to 1882, inclusive. He is a faithful member of the Church of England. He married Julia S. Rose, daughter of Isaac N. Rose, a leading citizen of Morrisburg and for years, Superintendent of Canals."

"Gildersleeve ships well known on Bay of Quinte"

"We would be remiss not to mention the Gildersleeves of Kingston, and the vast empire of shipping on the Great Lakes, which lasted for one hundred and fifteen years.

"The late Mrs. Anna Young, of Guelph, who tells the story of the Gildersleeves , in her book "Great Lakes Saga," was the daughter of a ship's purser, Hugh Young, who had known two generations of Gildersleeves and had served most of his life on the Great Lakes.

"Their names are associated with the inauguration and development of steam navigation on Lake Ontario, Bay of Quinte and the Upper Great Lakes.

"Henry, grandson of Richard Gildersleeve, decided in 1816 to try his luck in Upper Canada. His journey by stagecoach and ship ended at a shipyard, where the village of Bath now stands. There he met the widow of the founder, Mrs. Henry Finkle, who also owned the tavern as well as shared in the new steamer, Frontenac, built there and launched September 7th, 1816.

"He was an outstanding success, and when his ship was launched, he was put in charge.

"He gained fame as a shipbuilder, and ship-owner, and soon hailed as "the father of steam navigation on the Great Lakes."

"Henry Gildersleeve soon was dividing his time between Kingston and the Ernestown shipyard. Mrs. Finkle was a partner in these enterprises and they decided to develop a regular water transportation system to serve the Bay of Quinte, Kingston, Montreal and settlements in between.

"In 1819, the steamer Queen Charlotte was built in their yard, which attained speeds in any weather, of five to seven miles per hour. She burned wood in her twin engines. Henry Gildersleeve became purser of this vessel in her second season, and later qualified for captain's papers.

"He built the steamer Sir James Kempt in 1829 and on April 17th, 1832, it commenced running between Prescott and Carrying Place.

"Other ships constructed by the firm were the Commodore Barrie, 1833, Prince of Wales, 1842, Henry Gildersleeve, 1839 and New Era.

"It is said that the Bay of Quinte was Henry Gildersleeve's first love, and that Gildersleeve steamers were the only ones on the Bay that ever did more than pay expenses.

"The Gildersleeve firm which later was known as the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Steamship Company, also built the steamer Bay of Quinte and owned the steamers: Hero, Caspian and North King which called regularly in Picton harbour. Mr. H.H. Gildersleeve was general manager in Picton.

"The Father of Steam Navigation," Henry Gildersleeve passed away on October 3rd, 1851, at the age of seventy five.

"Overton S. Gildersleeve, Henry's eldest son, succeeded his father as manager on the firm's boats on the Bay of Quinte."

Henry built the handsome house at 264 King Street East in about 1825; a property that the family lived in until 1909, when it was bought by Dr. W.R. GLOVER.

The 1855 Kingston etc. City Directory shows Gildersleeve living at 62 King Street, with offices at 34 King Street in Kingston, from the City of Kingston Property Inventory of Sydenham Wad

87 Wellington Street

The influential Gildersleeve family owned the property, located on lot 165, during the 1850s and 1860s. Overton Smith Gildersleeve was a politician, lawyer and head of the family shipping business. He served as mayor of Kingston in 1855, 1856, and 1861-62. Charles Fuller Gildersleeve, who also became mayor of Kingston, held the property in trust for Sarah Minerva Macdonald (née Gildersleeve) and her husband James G. Macdonald during the late 1860s-early 1870s.[†] There is a building on the site in the 1850 Vavasour map, as well as the 1865 Innis map but it was likely an earlier one replaced by or incorporated into the present building. The side stone wall may have belonged to the earlier structure. The brick facade, brick cornice, large windows and flat roof suggest a date from the 1870s or later. In 1889, it was occupied by Mrs Jane D'Arcy, dressmaker (directory).

The Windsor Star (Windsor, Ontario), 13 MAR 1933; Obituary of Henry Gildersleeve

"Ex-Manager of Northern Navigation and C.S.L.

"Ottawa, March 13 - Henry H. Gildersleeve, former manager of the Northern Navigation Company and later of the Canada Steamship Lines, was dead here today. Prior to his retirement a few years ago he was a prominent figure in navigation circles on the Great Lakes. He died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Victor B. Rivers after a lengthy illness and was 66 years old.

"Born in Kingston, Ont., Mr. Gildersleeve was the last surviving member of a direct line of nine generations of Gildersleeves dating back to 1544 in England. His predecessors were United Empire Loyalists and settled in Frontenac County after the American revolution. His grandfather operated the first steamship on Lake Ontario and was the founder of the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Navigation Company.

"It was with the company founded by his grandfather that Henry Gildersleeve first entered the shipping business, although prior to that he had worked for a bank. He was promoted to the position of manager and in 1904 took over the office of general manager of the Northern Navigation Company at Collingwood.

"When Northern merged with the Canada Steamship Lines in 1918 Mr. Gildersleeve continued in office. He was largely responsible for the building of the Hamonic and Noronic, two of the largest and best known passenger steamers plying the Great Lakes. From Collingwood, Mr. Gildersleeve moved to Sarnia as district manager and later he went to Toronto. He retired in 1909.

"The funeral will be held in Kingston, Ont., at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Interment will take place at Cataraqui Cemetery there."
