The Ketchum Family

Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, 1904; (pages 467 - 470)

"There is no authentic testimony that reaches farther back than the beginning of the nineteenth century in the history of this family. What we are principally concerned with, however, is that date of its advent in Canada, and here we are entitled to claim for the Ketchum family a place among the founders of Upper Canada. It was in 1812 that Thaddeus Ketchum, the pioneer, joined the stream of exiles - by this time one of considerable volume - and fixed upon Prince Edward County as a port of refuge in the storm which, in the southern part of the continent, showed little signs of abating.

"What it was that determined Thaddeus on coming from Herkimer County, N.Y., all the way by land, or what actuated him to disregard the scriptural injunction which counsels that one's flight should not be in the winter, we cannot tell; suffice it to say that he moved his family and some portion of his goods in a sleigh drawn by a team of horses, and penetrated to what is now Green Bush, in the township of Hallowell; he removed afterwards to Athol, where he bought a small farm. He married Elizabeth Haukinson (sic) and lived to bring up a large family. He died in 1872, aged ninety-five years.

"His eldest son, James Ketchum, reached nearer to the century mark than his father; he died in 1897, aged ninety-seven years. The second son, Thaddeus, married into the Lawson family. Two of the daughters, Eliza and Maria, settled in the United States. Parker Ketchum married Hannah Allison. This was the Hannah Allison referred to in the memoirs of the Allison's families, who gave to Orville Allison, a grandson of the pioneer, Jeremiah Allison, a beautiful silk Union Jack made by hand that had been presented to her husband, Ensign Ketchum, when his troop of cavalry was disbanded in Picton seventy years ago. It is still in a good state of preservation and flies to the breeze on gala days commemorative of Canadian history. Coming down to another generation, Eli Ketchum, the third son of the pioneer's eldest son, James, now seventy-four years of age, and resident in Picton since 1903, was a farmer in Athol and a Justice of the Peace there for about forty-seven years; he has also been Councillor of the township, County Councillor, school trustee and issuer of marriage licenses. Another grandson of the pioneer, Arza B. is a farmer in Athol, and occupies a substantial and artistic residence, built of stone, as one enters Cherry Valley from Picton."

He married Elizabeth Haukinson #78514.¹
