"The Thorn Family"

"The Thorns are an old family in Prince Edward County who find their common progenitor in Samuel Thorn, a United Empire Loyalist who migrated during the Revolutionary War from Dutchess County, N.Y., to New Brunswick, where he settled for a number of years and reared a family of eight children. Before leaving New York he married Phoebe Chase, who was a sister of the founders of the Chase family in Prince Edward. Her sister Mary was the grandmother of the late Sir S.L. Tilly, of New Brunswick.

"Samuel Thorn lived about twenty-eight years in New Brunswick, and then removed to Prince Edward County and settled in Hillier.

"The Thorns came accompanied by such well-known county families as the Babbitts, Morgans and Giles. Samuel Thorn and his son Seth, who had married Rhoda Babbitt before leaving New Brunswick, worked a two hundred acre lot, on which they lived in two small houses. Robert, the eldest of the family, had married Miriam Cyphers [sic, Cyphers], and had a son four years old at the time he came to Prince Edward. He procured a hundred acres of virgin forest land in the third concession of Hillier, now owned by the Kirk and Nethery families. The pioneers were not only subjected to the encroachments of the forest, but also to the depredations of the wolves who occasionally wrought sad havoc among their flocks. Deer, partridge and many kinds of the best game abounded; and mink, muskrat and duck were to be had in plenty by the creek which ran through the farm and turned Trumpour's mill wheel.

"Robert Thorn, a son of Robert, and already alluded to as being only four years old when the family left New Brunswick, is still a resident of Hillier, being in his eighty-third year (in 1904), and well remembering phases of the early life that was so full of toil and sport. He recalls his father serving as a non-commissioned officer in the Rebellion of 1837; that brief but momentous epoch in the history of the Dominion's making. The father, who was an active Conservative, died at the age of sixty-six years; his wife, Miriam Cyphers, surviving him by ten years, when she died while living with their son George on Manitoulin Island.

"Of the children of Samuel Thorn it may be noted that William married three times; first Eliza Blizzard, second, Elizabeth Pettit, and third, Mary Blount. He first taught school in Hillier, but afterwards engaged in the more remunerative occupation of a merchant in Wellington. He was able eventually to retire from business and settle in Picton, where he died about the year 1884.

"Samuel Thorn, the youngest of the old pioneer, lived with his parents in the old homestead, to which he succeeded after his father's death. Subsequently he sold the place and retired to Bloomfield, where he lived a number of years.

Eventually he removed to Michigan, being accompanied by his wife, who was Priscilla Pettit. They both died in the States.

"James P. Thorn, Esq., son of William Thorn, third son of the Pioneer, is prosperously engaged in the hotel business at Picton. He was formerly in the dry goods business. His dealings are quite extensive as he also owns and operates a valuable farm in Hallowell. Mr. Thorn advocated bonusing the C.O.R. during the ten years he served as Reeve of the town of Picton, and had the satisfaction of closing the proceedings and securing the railway by signing the necessary bonds as Warden of Prince Edward County. He was instrumental with others in securing and beautifying the cemetery at Picton, which has grown to be a most beautiful park with trees, walks, fountains and flowers.

"W. Frost Thorn, M.D. is the son of James P. Thorn. He passed his final examination with credit at an early age."

He married Phoebe Chase #71881, 19 February 1794 in Waterborough, New Brunswick,<sup>3</sup> b. c. 1770? in New York State (daughter of (unidentified) Chase #179069 and Eppie Douglas #179070).
