Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, 1905; The Welbanks Family (pages 884 - 888)

"Thomas Welbanks was an English soldier from Yorkshire who had fought in the Peninsular War [Ed. 1807 - 1814]. He followed the drum through many a hard-fought during the War of Independence. And when at last peace was proclaimed, doffed the scarlet of the soldier for the more sombre hues of the pioneer. When he first came into Canada he settled at Kingston; but he soon removed to South Marysburg and settled near the old Black River Bridge. The land that he drew from the Government he bequeathed to his son George, who it turn passed it on to his son George A. Welbanks, it was then traded with Palen Clark, whose descendants are now settled there.

"The old pioneer prospered and became a man of means; at one time he owned a tract of six of eight hundred acres of land in Hungerford, of which however his descendants inherited only four hundred. When in the States he married a Frenchwoman (sic) whose name was LaRue. Their son Thomas paid a visit in 1837 to her people in Genesee County, New York, and his American uncles and aunts were delighted to meet their Canadian nephew but could not refrain from a passing jocular allusion to the rebellion then in progress. [Ed. Mackenzie Rebellion 1837 - 1838]. They remarked that all they wanted was a breakfast spell in which to take Canada; but they received the retort that all they needed was one regiment of red coats to send them flying.

"After the Pioneer died in 1811, his widow married again, but in time she bought a farm for each of her sons, with the exception of Hiram, who had returned to the States, where he was at the time of his mother's death. When he came back to Canada, his nephew, George A. Welbanks, presented him with a farm of (a) hundred acres in Hungerford. George A. Welbanks still lived in Athol township over eight-five years of age. He has been a Justice of the Peace for sixty years, a record in service to which few other magistrates in Canada can lay claim. When the Lyon Mackenzie Rebellion was disturbing the country he was one of the first to respond to the call to arms. Years later he was appointed assessor and collector for the township, a position which he held for ten years. Although well beyond four score years of age. George A. Welbanks is still hale and hearty, and his whitened locks belie the strength and clearness of his mind and memory. He recalls the old days when game was plentiful and remembers the passing of the pigeons he caught in nets by the hundreds. They were son plentiful that the hunters needed only to go into the woods at night armed with torches and sticks to procure them by the bagful; their flights of migration northward were at times so dense as actually to darken the rays of the sun. His father was wounded at Sackett's Harbor in the War of 1812.

"The Welbanks descendants have been closely and prominently associated with Marysburg since its early settlement. Thomas Welbanks, a grandson of the Pioneer, and a magistrate for the county, remembers the Indians living on the point running out into the marsh by the cemetery at the head of South Bay. He describes them as fine old fellows, who, even if their appearance did frighten the children, supplied the mother with baskets, trays and scoops. He still has in his possession a scoop which was his mother's; it was made of basswood and used for scooping flour and is nearly eight years old. Among other interesting old papers whose perusal gives on an insight into the ways and customs of the pioneer life, Thomas Welbanks has in his possession some old receipts. One is for payment for digging the grave of George Welbanks; while another reads: "Good to Thomas Morgan for seven shillings and threepence in Good Merchantable Wheat at market price by the 1st March next, as witness my hand this 7th February, 1821. George Welbanks. These documents, like nearly all the other writings of the district, were penned by Squire McDonnell.

"Robert and Thomas Welbanks, two sons of the Pioneer, each bought a hundred acres, side by side, from Robert Walker, of Kingston. They paid the sum of eight hundred dollars and together worked the land until they felt confident to start separately. On this lot at the head of South Bay, Thomas Welbanks in 1823, built his house, which, in 1882, was rebuilt by his son Thomas; the entire floor was left intact, and the new house put over it. Besides being a magistrate, Thomas Welbanks was treasurer of the township for many years and held a captaincy in the militia for almost sixty years. He had been engaged in various business and commercial undertakings, and was elected the first director of the Bay of Quinte Fire Insurance Company; a post that he has held for the past thirty years.

"Robert Welbanks, second son of the Pioneer, was a leading farmer in South Marysburg. Of his children it may be noted that William resides in South Marysburg, and married first, Harriet Van Dusen, and second, Matilda Lowry. His daughter Addie married Lewis Rose (of the Peter Rose family), who died in 1904; another daughter, Cassie, married Samuel Williams. A son, Arthur Welbanks, has recently embarked in business at Port Milford, carrying on a large general store with good success. He resides with his sister Aurelia upon the old homestead.

"John Welbanks, sixth child of the Pioneer, married Deborah Ostrander of the old and highly respected Ostrander family. Their son, also John Welbanks, married Mary Warren, and settled in South Marysburg; they have several children, but lost their second child eldest son, Kenneth Welbanks, May 10, 1903."

"Francis Thomas Welbanks, of Amherst Island, died in Kingston General Hospital on Nov. 13, 1991 after a two-month illness. He was 81. He was born in Brighton, Ont., a son of Anna Beatrice Fritz and Elburn Welbanks, and attended public school in Prince Edward County. He later moved to Amherst Island where he went to high school and continued in the fishing business with his father. He worked briefly as a miner in the Sudbury area. Mr. Welbanks married Nessie Eleanor Glenn in 1937 and in 1949 they began farming dairy and later beef cattle on the south shore farm which has been the family home ever since. He served as councillor on the island from 1938 to 1945, when he became Township Clerk, a post he held for 30 years. He retired from commercial fishing in 1980 because of ill health. He was interested in history, particularly marine history and the history of Great Lakes boats, and served as a source of information for several authors and historians. Some of his memories appeared in Booze, Boats and Billows. He was a longtime member and past master of the Maple Leaf Masonic Lodge No. 119 in Bath, past grand steward of the Grand Lodge of Canada and a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason, as well as a Shriner. He was a member and trustee of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. He is survived by sons Eric Francis and wife Linda (Hicks), of Nicholson's Point, and Theodore (Ted) Harold and wife Heather (Sedore), of Amherst Island; grandchildren Susanne, Cheryl, Shawn, John and Rick; sister Irene Glenn and brother Howard, both of Amherst Island. He was predeceased by infant son Glenn Elburn. The funeral on Nov. 16 was conducted by Rev. Lindsay McIntyre. The pallbearers were Avery Brown, Melville Filson, Keith Miller, Allan Caughey, Ted Wemp and Eric Miller. Interment was at Glenwood Cemetery, Amherst Island. "
